FIRST RIDE FREE

New bus system starts Aug. 18

By GAIL DOTINGA
Herald Staff Writer

Terrace residents will get their first ride free on the new transit system.

Mayor David Maroney announced Wednesday at a press conference that on August 18, the first day the buses will be in service, residents can ride free of charge.

Monday, August 18, will be a big day for Terrace residents because, at last, we will have an alternative to the automobile for work, shopping and recreational trips," said the mayor.

Two buses will be in operation for routes 1, 2 and 3.

The fares will be 40 cents for adults, 30 cents for senior citizens, 30 cents for students and children under five ride free.

Hours of operation will be from 7:00 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. from Monday the Thursday.

Buses will be available every 30 minutes from 7-9 a.m. and from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. The service will be hourly at all other times.

The routes have been designed to make it easier for the residents of Terrace to travel to and from major activity centres, such as the downtown area, Northwest Community College, the Junior and Senior Secondary Schools, Mills Memorial Hospital, and Skeena Valley Lodge.

The Soucie bus will provide service from downtown Terrace to the core area in a counter-clockwise loop. The bus will serve Caledonia Senior Secondary and Skeena Junior Secondary Schools. A special diversion to the pool-arena complex will also be provided on Friday evenings.

The Halliwell bus will route in a clockwise loop commencing downtown, proceeding west on Lazelle Avenue then along Highway 16 to Kalum Lake Drive. The bus will then travel through the bench area via Halliwell returning downtown via Kalum Street.

The Keith bus will provide service to the residential areas south of Highway 16 and the CNR tracks. This route will travel from downtown Greig over Highway 16, then in a clockwise direction providing service to Keith Estates including Mills Memorial Hospital, B.C. Hydro Building and Forest Products Mills along Keith Street.

Timetables will be delivered to every household in Terrace in mid-August. Terrace is the 16th community in British Columbia, outside of the Lower Mainland, to have its own urban transit system.

"This reflects the growing needs of our community and recognition that, while the automobile has become part of our life, communities such as ours must provide an alternative means of transportation for their residents," said Maroney.

Urban Transit Authority officials hope Terrace will experience the same type of success with their bus system as Kitimat and Prince Rupert do.

"We find that different areas of the province have different ridership characteristics," the Okanagan has its own characteristics, as does the Kootenay region," Bob Dingwood, Director of Services for Small Communities pointed out.

"Kitimat and Prince Rupert transit systems have both been very successful in terms of ridership and cost recovery."

Funding for the system will be split between the District of Terrace, the Regional District, and revenue from ridership and advertising. The total cost from August 18 to December 31, 1980 will be $79,500. Terrace will pay $22,400, and the Regional District $41,800.

In November, a new 30-foot Orion bus will arrive to replace the older models that will be used at the start. The new buses, on order now, will seat 36 passengers.

The Terrace Transit Service will be operated by Coastal Bus Lines of Kitimat. Coastal also operates the Kitimat, Agassiz, and Prince Rupert systems.

Coal benefit said $4.5 billion

VICTORIA (CP) — More than $4.5 billion in taxes and other benefits will accrue to the federal and provincial governments over 30 years if a deal is reached with the Japanese steel industry over northeastern B.C. coal, a report says.

The Price Waterhouse report, commissioned by Teck Corp. and Quintette Coal Ltd., two companies involved in the coal proposals, also said its estimate is based on development of only two of the proposed deposits.

The firms are negotiating to sell the Japanese five million tonnes of coking coal and 1.7 million tonnes of thermal coal a year. Dr. Norm Keevil Jr., Teck's executive vice-president, said the study "was commissioned in order that the public is able to appreciate the economic benefits in view of the many conflicting reports over the last month about the northeast coal development."

Based on a price to the Japanese of close to $75 a tonne using 1980 capital costs, the report says that in addition to benefits to the senior governments, the mines will contribute $141 million — $4.7 million a year — to municipal authorities.

"Thus, the total mine infrastructure projects should generate $4,670 million in federal, British Columbia and municipal taxes over the 30 years," the study said. The report also noted the impact on the Canadian balance of payments and estimated there will be a net foreign exchange inflow of more than $400 million (in 1980 dollars) for each year the mines are in operation.

The consulting firm emphasized its calculations "include only the direct effects of mine and infrastructure expenditures and some of the indirect impacts relating to the Peace River area."

They said if all indirect effects were included the totals would be significantly higher. And, said the report, along with the 1,900 operating employees at the mines, indirect effects of the projects will generate "a further 2,500 to 4,000 jobs just in B.C. and between 3,000 and 4,000 in eastern Canada."

"The effect of this should be to double the tax contributions from employment presented in this report."

Other figures listed: —corporate taxes and royalties: $630.3 million (Ottawa); $1,000.7 billion (B.C.); —interest payments: $102.1 million (Ottawa); $4.8 million (B.C.); —railway net revenues: $678 million (Ottawa); $375 million (B.C.); —port revenues: $330 million (Ottawa); $11 million (B.C.).

The report also says that based on annual production of 6.7 million tonnes a year, the coal would have a value of $470 million with total value over the initial 30 years of $14 billion. This compares with estimated mines development cost in the same period of $900 million.

Annual payroll would be $45 million.

Power struggle changes course

ZAMBOANGA (Reuter) — The government and Moslem secessionist rebels are locked in a struggle to win popular support in the southern Philippines.

The conflict between the government and the Moro National Liberation Front (MNL) has changed since the early 1970s, when it approached all-out war with 50,000 casualties.

In a phrase frequently used, it remains a battle for "the hearts and minds" of the two million or more Moslems concentrated in the south of the predominantly Christian Philippines.

The phrase does not exclude military action on the part of up to one-third of the Philippine armed forces, or a recent series of grenade attacks — blamed on the rebels — in several cities. Abuse by the military and the MNL of the civilian population have also become part of the pattern, but so have efforts to undermine the rebel cause by official stress on economic and cultural development and on a newer element — regional autonomy.

On a military level, there is a general consensus that the scale of fighting in the south has become much lower. Concerted drives by the military into selected areas have pushed the rebel groups deeper into remote areas of Mindanao, the main island in the south, and to the smaller ones stretching southwest of Zamboanga toward Indonesia.

In the southwest and in central Mindanao, there are many insecure areas, and even in urban centres of western Mindanao such as Zamboanga, Pagadian and Dipolog, soldiers are never far away.

Local commanders, such as Col. Ricardo Sains in Dipolog, constantly press for better land communications so they can send their men into areas worst affected by the rebels.

Rear Admiral Romulo Espaldon, over-all commander for the southern region, said the situation has improved tremendously since the height of the conflict in 1973 and 1974. He said there are only between 10,000 and 11,000 MNL rebels operating throughout the south, compared with 50,000 to 60,000 during the early years.

The admiral and other government officials said the answer to the conflict is to bring economic development to the long neglected south.

In recent years, the government of President Ferdinand Marcos has put greater concentration on development outside the main Philippine island of Luzon, and Mindanao has been selected for some of the country's biggest industrial and agricultural projects.

Some international aid has also been directed to the Zamboanga area. But there are those who maintain that economic development may lessen but will never stop the rebel action, which they see as steeped in cultural, religious and ethnic differences.

Admiral Espaldon countered that argument by saying the MNL leaders, who are split into at least three factions, are outside the country living in the Middle East and they have no interest in returning to the Philippines.

It was in the Middle East that efforts were made in late 1979 to meet the Moslem demands for a greater say in their own affairs.

Discount scheme hits snags

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of local investors is trying to launch a cash discount system but the cardholder might find that the plan isn't really so great.

Called Cash Discount Canada, the plan promises discounts of up to 20 per cent at local retail stores for those who pay $20 a year for a card.

A survey of retailers advertised by the program as participants shows that most offer discounts of only eight to 15 per cent and that the discount might not apply to everything in the store.

One merchant surveyed even denied taking part in the program after a full-page ad in a local newspaper two days earlier listed his store as one providing a discount to cardholders. The first merchant surveyed provided a surprise. One reporter asked how much she could expect off a $49 throw rug that she considered buying with the card. The salesman said the discount was 10 per cent off everything in the store, and offered the reduction on the spot without the card — an offer repeated at other stores.

At a news and gift shop up the street, the discount was offered on only a small selection of inexpensive souvenirs.

Other stores checked would not offer the discount on sales items.

The Discount Canada ad did not say whether the discount applied to everything in the store. The promotional pamphlet available at shops said the customer is "assured discount of up to 20 per cent of all your purchases at each of these merchants."

Jim Gotsch, Cash Discount Canada spokesman, said this did not imply that every store was offering a discount on all merchandise. A directory of participating stores, which the consumer receives on sending in his $20 for yearly use, lists the discount each store offers and any exempt merchandise.

There now are about 600 retailers taking part in the program, Gotsch said, about 170 more than were listed in the ad.

He said the company plans to issue monthly directory supplements to cardholders, advising them of new merchants and of any changes to a retailer's discount policy.

The company needs about 400,000 subscribers before it can make money, Gotsch added. So far, 120 had joined.

A spokesman for a participating optical shop said the program makes sense to the retailer if it works. Because there is no charge to the retailer in the first year of the program — a $50 fee is levied the second year if the retailer decides to stay in — it may cut down on the amount the merchant pays to credit-card companies, since that is levied on a percentage basis.

Most retailers said they joined the program was to attract customers. They didn't consider the convenience of dealing with cash a factor.

"The retailer has nothing to lose," said Bill Leithhead of ArtRageous, who joined the program in hopes of encouraging people to return to the store. Since Cash

Discount Canada only operates locally as opposed to international schemes like Travelsave, Leithhead believes it will prompt return business.

Gotsch said the subscriber faces no risk in the program. If he is not happy with his investment, the subscriber can receive a full refund in 30 days.

A new way to detect Unemployment Insurance abuse.

Most people getting unemployment insurance play by the rules. But some people don't seem to know that they can take a job and collect benefits without telling us they're working. That's why employers are being asked to send us the starting date and Social Insurance Number of new hires from September 1, 1980.

This information is cross-checked with the Social Insurance Number of people receiving unemployment insurance benefits. Only cases of potential abuse will ever surface. After investigation, anyone found receiving benefits to which they are not entitled will have to repay them. It may be an honest mistake. Some people forget or don't understand they must tell Unemployment Insurance and report their total earnings when they start a new job. In that case, repayment is all that's required. But, a penalty or prosecution may follow when the new system detects people wrongly collecting benefits.

If you are collecting unemployment insurance benefits, and start a new job, please say so on your UI claimant report card.

Report calls for banning of Kemano II

By GAIL DOTINGA
Herald Staff Writer

An environmentally concerned citizen and fish culturist from Burns Lake has written a report calling for the ban of the Kemano II project.

Louise Schillinger feels the project will have a devastating effect on the fish and tourist industry in the northwest. He wrote the report on his own initiative, using data from the University of California, the International Pacific Fisheries Commission, the Pollution Control Board and from the federal and provincial fisheries departments.

"The sole purpose of this report was to put the information in such a way that people could understand it," said Schillinger.

"It is my firm belief that the majority of the public is unaware of the seriousness of the Kemano II project."

Schillinger claims there is no personal gain in writing the report for him because he is a trout farmer and it is the salmon that will be harmed most if the Kemano II project goes through.

In the report, several recommendations are made to reverse what he feels is the existing trend to "total destruction" of the B.C. fishing industry. One of the recommendations is to support and enforce amendments to both the Fisheries Act and the Pollution Control Act.

With the Fisheries Act, Schillinger supports Bill C-38, an amendment to the Act, states at one point that no one person shall carry on any work or undertaking that results in the harmful alteration, disruption or destruction of fish habitat.

The Pollution Control Amended Act of 1967 should be enforced by Federal Fisheries and Pollution Control Board, recommends Schillinger. The Act gives the Minister power to declare a pollution emergency if, in his opinion, immediate action is required to prevent, control, remove or abate the pollution.

Several other recommendations relate to an area extending from east of Hazelton to north of Houston to Prince George that Schillinger claims is pollution free from the Kemano II project. He feels this area should be declared by law an environmental sanctuary for the protection of the reproduction of salmon.

No pollution-creating industry should be permitted within this area, including the Kemano II project.

Schillinger also recommends that no increases in air polluting contaminants be permitted and that only asphalt covered culverts should be installed.

Enclosed in his report is a statement from the University of California and the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission that galvanized culverts are highly toxic to fish.

Zinc used in the galvanizing process will, under certain conditions depending on the acidity of the water, go into solution. The report further states that since the toxic effect of zinc in small quantities is cumulative, trout and salmon may be killed.

Schillinger claims that there are thousands of galvanized culverts installed in the vicinity of salmon spawning streams and creeks.

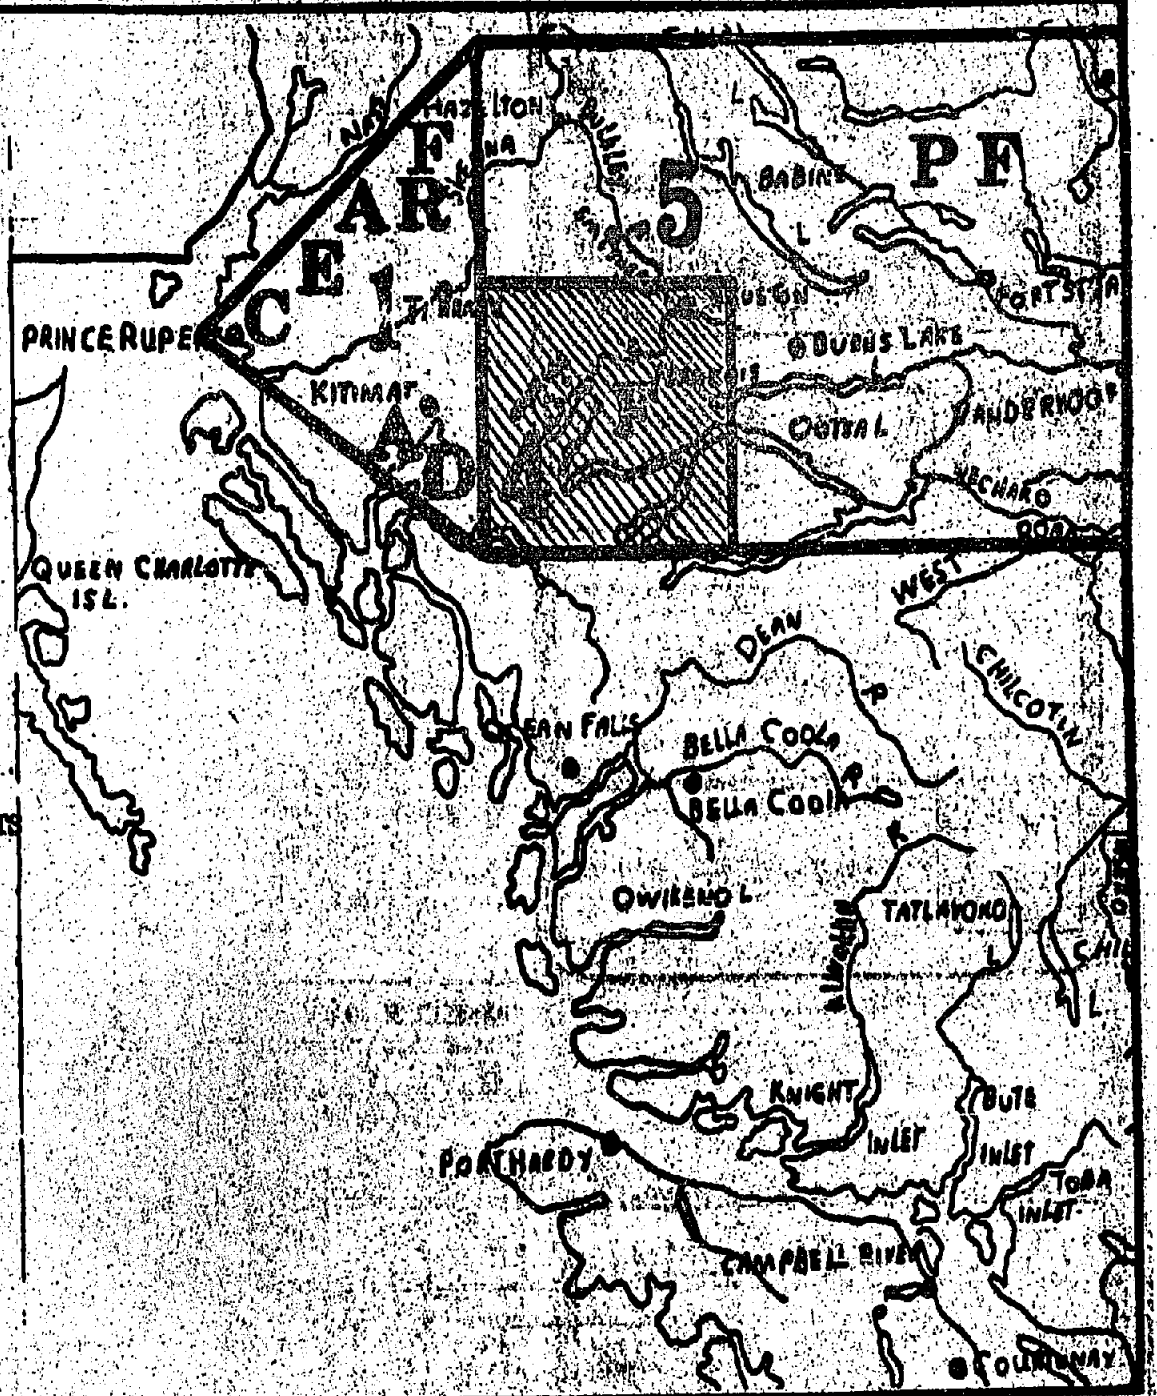

He also mentions a sewage problem that will be brought on by the Kemano II project. The decrease in the water flow of the Nishko river will mean a higher concentration of sewage, says Schillinger. He added that increased sewage contaminants will create disease among the salmon.

Lalonde met with McEland for more than two hours Monday morning and with Barrett for about 45 minutes in the afternoon.

A spokesman in Lalonde's office in Ottawa said nothing of a confidential or governmental nature was discussed with Mr. Barrett or NDP energy critic Chris D'Arcy. Barrett said he and D'Arcy spent most of the meeting with Lalonde discussing issues unrelated to those Lalonde and McEland discussed.

"I can't believe he (McEland) would be so stupid as to send a letter like that," Barrett said of the complaint. "It's unbelievable."

Kitimat group meets Bennett

By GAIL DOTINGA
Herald Staff Writer

The Kitimat Advisory Development Commission has been invited by Premier Bill Bennett to meet with him next Tuesday.

The key message the commission members will relay to the premier during the visit is that, while opposition to development in the area has been voiced, there are a lot of people who are in favor of it.

"Certainly we are not in favor of everything or anything, but there are some of us who would like more diversity in Kitimat and a bigger tax base," said Alderman Ron Burnett.

Burnett referred to a number of parents of graduating students who would like their children to stay in Kitimat but, because of limited employment opportunities will most likely move on.

"If we had more development in this area, the choices would be greater," said Burnett.

The invitation from the premier came after the commission had written letters expressing their concern about government action relating to development proposals in Kitimat.

These would include the methanol plants, the Kemano completion project, ferry service and docking facilities and the proposed hot springs redevelopment.

"We would like these developments providing they meet environmental concerns. We don't want undue raping of the valley," said Burnett.

Woman to get sockeye back

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal fisheries department will have to pay $105,000 to a woman who lost her sockeye fish, a B.C. Supreme Court judge ruled Wednesday.

What the department will have to pay is 78 sockeye salmon, delivered to the home of Rita McRae, of Sardinia, near Chilliwack in the Fraser Valley.

The salmon are to replace 78 fish seized when a fisheries officer in the Smithers area of north-central B.C. apprehended Ms. McRae in August, 1978. The department didn't have enough cold storage for 78 fish, so kept two for evidence purposes and sold the other 74 to the Salvation Army for $1 under established policy.

A year later, Fisheries Act charges against Ms. McRae were dropped and when she asked for her fish or compensation, the department offered her the $1.

Just who in the department's bureaucracy was responsible for creating a policy which so magnanimously disposed of a private citizen's property was not revealed, said Mr. Justice W. J. MacKinnon. He said it was admitted Ms. McRae was never consulted about disposition of her property.

Lawyers for Ms. McRae argued she was being punished without a finding of guilt.

The fisheries department had contended she was entitled only to the amount the department received in disposing of the 74 sockeye — $1.

The judge said a fisheries officer is required to make every effort to obtain as close to the market value as possible for the property being sold.

"What occurred here, of course, was not a sale but a donation of articles worth many hundreds of dollars to a community service organization, a procedure not authorized by Section 58 of Fisheries Act," he said.

A department spokesman said the salmon to be given to McRae would probably be taken from among fish caught regularly by the department for testing.

Centre will open with ministers here

The Skeena Health District-Human Resources Centre will open officially Friday, July 25, at 4 p.m.

Human Resources Minister Grace McCarthy and Health Minister Rafe Mair will officiate the event to mark the opening of the new centre at 3412 Katum Street.

From 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. there will be an open house for the public.

Immediately following, McCarthy and Mair will arrive and the official ceremonies will begin at 4 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Firms wants blasting despite prohibition

VANCOUVER (CP) — Amax of Canada Ltd. wants the federal fisheries department to permit blasting and dumping of as much as 25 tons of rock in Alice Arm — despite a prohibition on blasting until the end of salmon runs in November.

The blasting would be in preparation for a tailings outfall for Amax's proposed molybdenum mine.

Amax now is pressing Vancouver fisheries headquarters for "conditional approval" despite the prohibition of blasting, local fishermen say.

Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc has ordered full review of special permission granted Amax in 1979 to dump 100 million metric tons of tailings into the ocean over the 26-year life of the mine.

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union in Prince Rupert said in a letter to LeBlanc Wednesday it is concerned about the impact of blasting and rock dumping at the height of the salmon season.

"Contrary to information supplied to cabinet at the time of setting the regulations, native Indians do rely on marine resources at Alice Arm for sustenance and it is also the basis of an important salmon fishery," said the union's letter.

Nishga Indians have protested against the dumping of tailings thousands of times greater than permitted under normal federal and provincial standards and are worried about effects on human health and the environment. The tailings would contain arsenic, lead, molybdenum, zinc, copper, iron and mercury.

Amax has been refused permission to start heavy industrial blasting until November but is pressing federal fisheries headquarters in Vancouver to begin blasting now, in the middle of salmon fishing season, and before the minister has conducted his review of special permission to dump tailings in the ocean," said UFAWU spokesman Mike Darnell.

Amax president C. Allen Born said the company wanted approval of blasting two weeks ago to construct a ledge to support a tailings pipeline and steel structures for its final outfall facility, about one kilometre from the Kitimat townsite.

UFAWU environmental coordinator Arne Tomlinson said even small-scale blasts used to scare away sea-lions have a drastic effect on fish, and Amax's proposed blasting would be "incredibly damaging."

Amax supervisor of environmental affairs George Robbins said no environmental studies have been done on the effects of blasting. Amax estimates fish would be killed inside a zone 15 to 30 metres wide.

If necessary, the company would use noise-makers to scare away fish, Robbins said.

WEATHER

The weather forecast for Friday sees much of the same weather continuing on. The day should have mainly cloudy skies, with occasional afternoon showers. The high for that day is expected to reach 17 degrees Celsius, and the overnight low is expected to drop off to 12.

The outlook for the weekend is generally poor, but there are a few chances of sun and by Sunday, it is expected to warm up to at least 20 degrees. Saturday sees cloudy skies and some sunny periods and Sunday, the same but a little warmer.

Paper misses point

VICTORIA (CP) — A federal paper has missed the point in the debate over a provincial say in control of offshore fisheries, B.C. Environment Minister Stephen Rogers said Wednesday.

The paper, released Tuesday in Halifax, says the coastal provinces have not made a convincing case on why Ottawa should give them a greater role in offshore fisheries management. Nor, it says, have they demonstrated that they could operate the fisheries more effectively.

Rogers disagrees, saying the provinces could do at least as good a job, if not a better job, than the federal government.

But that is not the point, the B.C. minister said. Rather, it is that fisheries are a provincial resource that should be administered by the provinces.

Rogers said fisheries is one of the topics scheduled for discussion during constitutional and that B.C.'s position remains unchanged — fisheries should be under provincial control.

Meet strains relations

Energy Minister Bob McEland has complained in a letter to his federal counterpart Marc Lalonde that relations between the two have been damaged because of a private meeting this week between Lalonde and B.C. Opposition leader Dave Barrett.

The letter was expected to arrive at Lalonde's mailbox today, the day the federal cabinet is supposed to decide whether to let the controversial first phase of the Alaska Highway natural gas pipeline project proceed. The British Columbia government last week told Ottawa it doesn't want the project to proceed.

A spokesman for Mc-

Clelland last night leaked the text of a supposedly personal and confidential message addressed to Lalonde.

McEland wrote he was "extremely disturbed" when Lalonde told him Monday he had arranged a formal meeting with the B.C. New Democratic Party leader.

"While I had no opportunity to raise my concern, given the circumstances of the meeting, I did not wish to let the opportunity pass without telling you that I believe the propriety of such an action is, to say the least, questionable, especially in view of the very delicate discussions which took place between us in our meeting."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I cannot agree more with your editorial on the infamous male stripper in your July 10 issue.

You say the show was disgusting and the hollering
girls watching were no
ladies, but slaving beasts living in the gutter. Our mayor remarked, "It is sick." Straight forward
language, but is it ever true!
In this respect I can agree
with the women's libbers,
too.

To the management of the Bavarian Inn, who told the reporter it was only the first of a series of nude shows, I would like to say that instead
of promoting their business,
they are doing it a lot of harm and this might be the beginning of folding up and bankruptcy.

People with a measure of

self-respect will no longer
patronize such a down-
trodden place for a night out dining. I myself cancelled a planned visit with my wife
for a dinner of goulash and steak. There are better and more decent places in town
to go to for enjoyment from now on. Many people, I am sure, will join us in this boycott. The fact that the stripping happens in the basement makes no difference as far as the principle is concerned. We don't want a Young Street of a Sunset strip in Terrace.

Let immature young
people grow up and let us
keep this town clean. If someone can make a decent living only by taking off their underpants indecently, then there is something, really rotten and stinking with our
so-called civilization.

Clown troupe goes to church

MANCHESTER, Conn. (AP) — Shirley Stager takes
her religion so seriously that she often clowns around in church.

With painted face, silly
costume, goofy hat and floppy feet, Mrs. Stager
leads a troupe of clowns called Fools for Christ. They throw confetti at the congregation and fill the church
with balloons.

When she's not clowning in church, she takes her fellow
"fools" to cavort in front of audiences at nursing homes
and schools.

The three unpaid fools
bring a message from the Bible.

"In order to get across the message of God's love, we often have to become fools in man's eyes," said Mrs.
Stager. "It's a very old
concept."

"The word clown is related
to a word that means servant, the lowest form of servant, and this is connected to Christ's preaching of equality."

She said, quoting from the Bible: "And the first shall be the last."

Mrs. Stager, 45, is part of a religious clowning revival
that began about 10 years ago in some Protestant
circles in the United States.

"In medieval times, the
clown was often ridiculing
the organized church so they opened up the church to have clowns incorporated into the church," she said.

After more than 15 years of public performances in a sacred dance group, Mrs.
Stager stepped naturally into
her role as a religious clown.

Religious dance remains important to her, and she is an officer of the Sacred Dance Guild, which has more than 600 members in the United States, Canada,

Australia and Great Britain.
She said her clowning is closely related to religious dance.

"Dance has been part of worship almost since the beginning. You'll find in the Bible, numerous times we are told to rejoice, and rejoice means dance, though
most of us don't know it."

"In my church, when I was growing up, dancing was frowned on. There was something wrong with it, but that's not true."

"Catholic priests are incorporating it into services,
and they're a little closer to
it, actually, because the Mass is filled with movement, prescribed movement," she said in a recent interview.

Despite some vehement
opposition, religious clowning — like sacred
dance — is beginning to gain
wider acceptance.

"We've reached the point
now where we're being asked to be consultants for
other people who want to begin to use clowns."

The performances —
sometimes presented
without warning to churchgoers surprised by their ministers' innovation — are pantomimes of Bible stories.

"There's a sermon that is a spoof of sermons," said Mrs. Stager. "The minister keeps preaching the sermon
until one of the clowns falls asleep, which makes the minister take notice."

"So he leaps through the Bible until he finds the simple truth that God is love
and to represent this he takes confetti from inside the Bible and throws it, and this wakes up the clown."

"At the end we release balloons and urge the audience
to toss them around together
in the joy of God's love."

OTTAWA — You've heard of regionalization,
of course.

One of the biggest problems of the country,
setting one section against another.

As in the case of Alberta and its oil, and Ontario empty of oil but full of envy.

That was the genesis of what Ontario has called "The Blue-Eyed Arabs" of the West, laughing on their bumper stickers about "The Eastern bastards freezing in the dark".

It's altogether a mysterious and baffling
situation, too much for most people including
New Brunswick's Premier, Richard Hatfield
who has wondered out loud why Canadians
should be paying Mexico more than twice as much for oil as it pays Alberta.

It's a situation created largely by made-in-Ottawa policies.

And, as you know, in Ottawa the federal
bottles not only make policy.

They make trouble.

Regionalism involving provinces doesn't seem to satisfy them.

They break it down to ridings and even districts.

Not with oil in this case, but with Unemployment Insurance rules.

The problem emerged the other day in the Commons involving the majority of the MPs, Liberals and Conservatives alike, and their constituents in New Brunswick.

But it applies to MPs — and people — to a greater or lesser extent in most other sections of the country.

It hinges on the time requirement for Unemployment Insurance qualification: 10
weeks in areas of depression and 14 weeks
where conditions may be more promising.

Robert Howie, Conservative MP for York-
Sunbury, dealt with it and involved in the crazy contradictions of the regional regulations, a majority of the province's parliamentarians and those of their constituents who may be drawing Unemployment Insurance.

"In the Doaktown area of Central New Brunswick," he related, "many people are busy
in the woods, yards and mills working with others whose kids go to the same schools, who worship in the same churches and shop in the same stores — but are treated differently by the UIC."

"The workers living on one side of the Doaktown district have to satisfy a 10-week
rule, but those living in the same general community under generally the same economic conditions have the 14-week rule to meet."

"This is crazy."

"In Madawaska," he continued, "a workforce of women travels across the county line to Restigouche to pick potatoes. Some even go as far as Ontario to harvest tomatoes."

"But the Madawaska women have to meet the 14-week rule while those in Restigouche come under the 10-week requirement."

"That is madness."

Mr. Howie called for rules drawn to economic realities and necessities rather than to arbitrary
and inflexible administrative rules.

Fred McCain, Conservative MP for Carleton-Charlottenburg then weighed in with his tales of bureaucratic boobyism.

Federal work funds for his riding, largely rural, were determined, he said, by allocation of programs for Fredericton and Saint John.

"There have been times in the last 10 years,"
he related, "when Saint John has been considered almost overemployed, resulting in the denial to my riding, right next door, of its proper share of assistance."

Then he told of two men, working side by side,
one living in Community A and eligible for Unemployment Insurance, the other lives 10 miles away in Community B and discovers he is underqualified in work-time for jobless benefits.

It was, he protested, "absolutely inequitable,
unfair," a cause of friction and responsible in large part for the dislike and distrust — even the fear and loathing — much of the public has for the faceless civil service snug and uncaring in its Ottawa cocoon.

4,500 years of hatred

ABU RAWWASH (AP) —
On a barren desert plateau
lie the shattered remains of a pyramid built 4,500 years
ago as a final resting place
for one of the most hated rulers in Egyptian history.

His name was Ra Dedef,
son and successor of the greatest pyramid-builder of them all, the Pharaoh Cheops, who erected his royal tomb 10 kilometres to the south at Giza.

"With an effort made nowhere else in Egypt, every block of casing stone and temple statuary belonging to Ra Dedef was broken into tiny bits," said Bernard Bothmer, curator of Egyptian art at the Brooklyn
Museum in New York.

"Hundreds of men must have worked 10 years to obliterate his memory," said Bothmer, pointing to baseball-sized chunks of red granite and quartz rock that litter the hard sandy ground
at Abu Rawwash.

"Nobody would have done
that unless they really hated
him."

So determined were the ancients to make Ra Dedef a nonperson that they scratched his name and those of his side of the family from the royal necropolis in Giza,
where Ra Dedef's father,
brother and nephew built the
three great pyramids.

It might have worked except that Ra Dedef, whose name in ancient hieroglyphs
means "stability of the sun,"
buried the famous Cheops
and left his name inscribed
on a royal funeral boat
unearthed next to the great
pyramid in Giza in 1954.

Why was Ra Dedef, who
ruled Egypt only eight years,
so despised?

Nobody really knows.
Some experts have
suggested he was a foreign usurper, while others
speculate he was the loser in a palace power struggle with a rival branch of the family.

"Ra Dedef was the offspring of one of Cheops's
queens but before he finished
building his pyramid
something happened and his memory got debased and his name rubbed out," said
Bothmer, who has led expeditions to Egypt since the 1950s.

Ra Dedef's mummy has never been found and the 25-
metre-deep burial chamber

is choked with rubble that has never been fully explored, even though a French expedition probed
part of the pyramid in 1901.

One reason archeologists
have not undertaken a more thorough exploration of the site is that Abu Rawwash has been a military preserve for
the last quarter-century of Middle East hostilities.
Nestled in the ruins are crater-like holes used as antiaircraft gun em-placements and a radar
station stands guard on the western edge of the site.

The army appears to have broken camp and Egyptian
officials say the site should be open to visitors by year's end.

Even so, few tourists are likely to make the journey to the lonely, barren hills 15
kilometres north of downtown Cairo. One reason is that the route is unmarked

and it takes a four-wheel-
drive vehicle to climb up the rocky plateau. Another is that Abu Rawwash, which means "father of fright" in colloquial Egyptian, has a reputation as a breeding ground for snakes and scorpions.

Zahi Hawwas, antiquities
inspector for Giza, said the government already had funded an expedition to begin this fall to excavate Ra Dedef's valley temple at the end of a 1½-kilometre-long causeway leading from the desert valley up to the pyramid.

"No one has ever made a systematic excavation at this site so nobody knows really what is here. You could find anything, including the sarcophagus of the king."

Had Ra Dedef's opponents
allowed him to finish his pyramid it would have been about 70 metres high, nearly equal to the smallest of the three pyramids of Giza.

All that remains of Ra Dedef's pyramid, however, are a few limestone blocks and a raised foundation about 14 metres high. The burial pit is open to the sky and easily accessible along a passageway cut in the limestone bedrock.

"With a crane, the rubble
could be cleared in two seasons of work," said Both-mer, adding the effort would be worthwhile even if a coffin was not found, since
the question of what happened to Ra Dedef is "one of the great mysteries that remains in ancient Egyptian
history."

"Uncommon" Common Sense Eases Funeral Burden

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I attended three funerals in the last month and have some tips for good friends who really mean it when they ask the family of the deceased, "Is there anything I can do?"

There are countless details to deal with, such as funeral arrangements, people to be notified, transportation and housing for incoming relatives and friends.

When bringing in food, please bring it in foil or disposable containers, otherwise containers must be washed, labeled, stored and returned. This takes time.

It would be helpful, too, if some casseroles could be brought in unbaked to be frozen and used a week or two later, when needed.

Friends shouldn't visit at mealtime, especially those with children who need to be fed.

Offer to sit with the house during the funeral. Due to publicity, families across the nation have returned from funerals to find that their homes have been burglarized. Most people are reluctant to ask a friend to miss the funeral, but believe me, this is one gesture of friendship that is greatly appreciated, so please offer.

I realize that these suggestions are only common sense, but you might find them worth printing.

IOWAN

DEAR IOWAN: Indeed they are. Common sense is very uncommon.

DEAR ABBY: Why would a man insist on knowing where his wife is every minute of the day? Do you think he suspects that she might be fooling around?

B. IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR B.: Not necessarily. Maybe he just wants to be sure where she is while he's fooling around.

DEAR ABBY: Why do people expect musicians to entertain at weddings, benefits and other functions for free? They'll say, "You're lucky God gave you a talent. You should share it with the world!"

A good musical performance is 10 percent talent and 90 percent work.

Parents spend thousands of dollars on music lessons. They are not free!

Costumes, music, gasoline and baby sitters all cost money. Organizations will spend money for a meeting room, decorations, food and speakers. But they expect musicians to donate their time and talent.

Abby, please spread the word that the ability to sing or play an instrument may be a God-given talent, but it takes hard work and practice to make it entertainment.

PAYWORTHY

DEAR PAYWORTHY: Consider it spread.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I disagree on something. I feel that an 11-year-old child should be sent to another room, outside, or somewhere out of hearing range when his parents are having a serious disagreement about money matters, marital problems, etc.

My husband feels that it is perfectly all right for the child to hang around and listen, so he can "learn."

What do you say?

DIFFERING VIEWS

DEAR DIFFERING: An 11-year-old should not be an ear-witness to his parents' marital disagreements, money fights or adult discussions. But if he is pointedly sent away, he may suspect that something is seriously wrong between his parents, causing him to feel threatened, frightened and anxious.

So I recommend privacy for such occasions -- and subtlety in acquiring it.

Yesterday's Cryptic — COMMITTEE SELECTS FINE SLATE OF CANDIDATES.

Today's Cryptic clue: X equals A

The Cryptic is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 18, 1980

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take the initiative in romance. Don't become impatient if another can't change plans at a moment's notice. Shared work projects favored.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Begin new work projects. An early start gives you an edge over the competition. A combined business-pleasure luncheon favored.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Sports are favored, but don't take unnecessary risks. You might enjoy having some people or a favorite romantic companion over.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Watch out for fights on the homefront. Don't do anything impulsive. Luck for those who share opinions with family members.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) Don't make decision while angry. Be careful driving. Shopping trips favored. Do your best to maintain harmony with others.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) Money comes in and goes out. Watch impulse buying. By sticking to a moderate course, you'll meet with success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You'll act on your feelings now. Be assertive without being pushy. Some quiet moments by yourself allows a plan to jell.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You'll keep busy but may be in a reclusive mood. A private talk goes well. Act in behalf of someone who needs your assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Why not plan a party? You'll take the lead in group activities now. A friend has some very useful business information.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) A time to go all out careerwise. Make things happen. Examine unexplored areas. You'll be pleased with the business advice you get.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Secure advice about a business matter. Watch sporadic work efforts. Meet with those who can give you new insights.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) A good time to negotiate loans or to contact insurance agents. A close ally will be highly cooperative regarding joint investments.

YOU BORN TODAY desire a position of power in the community. You're naturally interested in world affairs and may be drawn to law, politics and education. You'd make a good administrator, though you personally dislike taking orders. You naturally gravitate towards mental occupations and would have success in education, science and criticism. Literature and acting may also appeal to you. You have many interests, but should learn to specialize for your best success. Birthdate of: S.I. Hayakawa, U.S. senator; Red Skelton, comedian; and William Thackeray, novelist.

IT GETS PRETTY HECTIC

PROVIDENCE, R.E. (AP) — Rachel Posow, mother of 11 handicapped children, says she's so happy "that sometimes I feel guilty about it."

With her husband, Carl, the 41-year-old Connecticut woman's life revolves around a family of 14 youngsters, 11 of whom have handicaps.

"I'm always tired," said Mrs. Posow. "But I figure being tired is an occupational hazard for any mother of a large family."

Here is not a typical household. The couple adopted their first multiple-handicapped child in 1971. Others soon followed.

"Our phone kept ringing... nurses and social workers asking would we accept this or that child, until finally in 1974 we set up a non-profit corporation and opened our home to more handicapped youngsters."

From their large home in Ellington, Conn., the Posows pursue the task of raising children ranging in age from 1 to 14. Wheelchairs in the spacious house are as common as roller skates and bicycles in a neighbor's home.

"The kids have wheelchair races," Mrs. Posow said in a telephone interview. "It gets pretty hectic around here with all the sibling rivalry."

The furniture in the home is widely spaced to allow manoeuvring room for the wheelchairs. Other furnishings, like cabinets and light switches are positioned so children can reach them easily, she said.

All but three of the children are adopted, though Mrs. Posow politely refuses to say which ones. "They're all my children."

The Posows' commitment to the children is total. Six years ago, Mrs. Posow quit her job as a nursing consultant and her husband gave up his position as a computer analyst to start their family, now a non-profit corporation called Alpha and Omega Inc.

"It's just the name we gave the corporate shell that we formed in order to qualify for some state funding to help support the family," Mrs. Posow explained.

"Everyone has something to contribute to the family. One of our youngsters, Eddie, has only two fingers and it's very difficult for him to tie bows. And Mina is in a wheelchair. So Eddie can pick up something Mina drops, and Mina can tie Eddie's shoes."

Handicapped children don't belong in hospitals any more than normal children, she said.

"It may sound corny but Carl and I feel like these children lying in hospital cribs belong to all of us, and we to them. I suppose that's one reason we do what we do."

Most of their children have spent long periods in hospitals.

"When the children came home to us, they'd never been able to say 'my' because the clothes they wore were whatever clothes the laundry sent up. They didn't have a favorite toy they could call their own."

Life is hard for a handicapped child in the hospital, she added, and the only way to survive is "by totally isolating yourself."

"One of the most difficult tasks for us is getting the youngsters to break out of that isolation."

Visiting can be harmful

EDMONTON (CP) — The operation is over, but you're still in a cloud and feeling a few pains.

Suddenly, a friend drops into the ward and starts chatting about such things as the nice weather and the operation she went through a few years ago.

Helen Mack, a United Church deaconess whose ministry for the last eight years has included visiting hospital patients, advises visitors to do more listening than talking.

Miss Mack's courses on the subject have been attended by friends and relatives of the sick, but she says a lot of other people could use them as well.

"You should not bring your own troubles to the hospital. Patients have enough of their own to carry."

She says it is best to start off with a positive greeting, such as a comment about how bright the room is or about how much you like the plants on the table.

"Let them get easy with you first."

Starting out with "How are you feeling?" may not be the best approach. The patient may not feel like talking about himself.

Sometimes all that is really needed is your presence and sitting quietly beside the patient is enough, Miss Mack says.

"Or maybe just your hands touching to show that you're there and that you care."

CAN BE FRIGHTENING

Hugh Tadman, public relations director at University Hospital, says visitors should be aware of the patient's feelings, which may include confusion and fear.

"It can be a frightening experience for some people," he says. Patients from small towns may find an environment with 4,000 staff workers disorienting.

Shoppers seek food 'lottery'

BELGRADE (Reuter) — Two friends stopped in front of a Belgrade grocery store to chat. Within minutes a long line had formed behind them.

This story, true or not, was told recently by a Belgrade newspaper to illustrate the sudden shortages of consumer goods in Yugoslavia.

"To choose the right moment and join a queue precisely when soap or coffee arrives is virtually equal to winning the first prize in a lottery," the national news agency Tanjug commented.

After Yugoslavia adopted a market economy in the 1960s, people gradually forgot the lineups that were common in the post-war years.

Shops had reasonable supplies of goods, both home-produced and imported.

The situation began to change in 1979 and took a dramatic turn this year. Faced with a world energy crisis, staggering deficits in foreign trade and balance of payments, as well as galloping inflation, the government decided strong measures were needed.

Yugoslavs were told to accept sacrifices. Although often unpopular, austerity measures have been generally accepted.

The national currency, the dinar, fell 30 per cent in a recent devaluation. The measure was designed to stimulate exports and attract foreign currency through tourism and remittances from Yugoslavs abroad.

But it is also certain to worsen shortages by restricting imports. Many Yugoslav industries use imported raw materials or semi-finished products.

Imported luxury products began to dwindle last year but now some essential consumer goods such as soap and coffee have disappeared from the shops.

People now wait for hours to buy these products, when they can find them. Impatient Yugoslavs, long used to an easier life, sometimes brawl in the lineups or break shop windows.

Coffee shortages have caused the most uproar. Yugoslavs are copious coffee drinkers and last year used 52,000 tonnes, paid for in precious foreign currency.

Shops now sell only 200 grams per person, when there is coffee at all.

Many people began hoarding detergent, coffee and food as soon as rumors of impending shortages began.

Sugar and oil, both home-produced, are normally plentiful. But as the rumors spread, people began buying them in bulk, causing shortages.

People suffering from heart trouble or diabetes find it difficult to buy imported medicine.

A senior Communist party official and economist, Jozse Smole, told a meeting of the party's central committee that certain shortages had become a "serious political problem."

Blind can see their province

VANCOUVER (CP) — Running your fingers over the bumpy surface doesn't tell you much. It's a map — you know that much because it says so in big print. But it's hard to imagine the texture of the glass beads as mountains, rivers and forests.

"You won't be able to feel much," says Ray Squirrel, a Simon Fraser University cartographer who devised the map.

"But blind people use their fingers as their eyes all their lives."

There is nothing new about maps for the blind. For some time there have been special raised-surface maps, but they are expensive and even libraries and schools often can't afford them.

Squirrel's maps are cheap to produce, so many blind people who will never see B.C.'s topography with their eyes will see it with their fingers.

His discovery of the new mapmaking process two years ago was an accident, a momentary fit of clumsiness. In his work as a mapmaker, he was carrying a freshly printed map which slipped from his hands and landed on the floor, ink side down.

"Instead of just chucking it away I said, 'Aw, what the heck,'" recalls Squirrel. Dirt and sand from the floor gave the map a gritty feeling and Squirrel the idea for his new maps.

Velvety flocking, glass beads and fine sand have replaced the dirt from Squirrel's office floor and as the process becomes more refined, its potential audience becomes larger.

Squirrel created his own graphics company, which employs three handicapped workers, to manufacture maps.

It was started with the help of the federal local employment assistance program which provides six months' funding for businesses that hire chronically unemployed persons.

"Within six months we'll be able to train handicapped people in the shop. They'll learn a trade and they'll do a trade that's worth while."

The 16 maps in the company's initial run will only be printed in limited quantities. "We're only making 50 of them for the school children at the provincial resources centre," Squirrel said, but he is confident there are other markets for his new process.

For a bubbling good time, serve Tomato Punch Montclair, a tasty diet delight.

PARTYTIME
STRIPED BASS

1/2 cup fresh parsley, chopped
1 whole striped bass (about 3 pounds), dressed
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
3 fresh tomatoes, sliced
2 onions, thinly sliced
1 cup Montclair Sparkling Natural Mineral Water
1/2 cup olive oil
1/2 cup white wine
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

Sprinkle parsley on bottom of greased baking pan. Lay the fish on the parsley; sprinkle with lemon juice, salt and pepper. Arrange tomato and onion slices on top of fish. Combine Montclair, olive oil, wine, oregano and garlic powder; pour over fish. Bake at 350° F.

1/2 teaspoon celery salt

Meredith Baxter-Birney
"Grows-Up" in New TV Role

In her newest role as TV spokesperson for a famous skin cream, Meredith Baxter-Birney talks about the paradox that exists in her life: often she's perceived as a daughter figure instead of the "grown-up" woman she really is. For, though in real life Meredith is the mother of three youngsters and the wife of actor David Birney, on television she's known to millions as a daughter - the headstrong divorcee on ABC-TV's "Family" series.

What bothers Meredith about her "daughter" portrayals is that people don't know she's a responsible adult woman - a mother! "I've been playing daughter roles for so long that people forget I'm grown-up with kids of my own," she states frankly in the 30-second Noxzema Skin Cream commercial.

Possibly, her daughterly image is sustained by the fact that she grew up the youngest of three siblings. Too, Meredith believes washing and moisturizing with Noxzema since girlhood has helped perpetuate her youthful image. The fluffy white cream is a classic beauty product which "makes my skin feel soft...younger looking," she says in the Noxzema commercial - perfect for the adult woman who wants glowy, clean-looking skin - a must for success in television, movies and, of course, real life!

Too, Meredith loves the fact that Noxzema Skin Cream is so versatile - it isn't necessary to buy an entire collection of beauty products. Noxzema does everything: cleans, moisturizes, smooths - so right for active women like Meredith Baxter-Birney who lead multi-faceted lives and want to maintain younger-looking skin without complicated beauty routines at budget-breaking prices.

UNUSUAL
CHURCH

This lovely church is a national shrine.

Rising above Washington, D.C., like a Byzantine fantasy, is the blue and gold dome and slim white tower of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. The church has been worked on for nearly 80 years. In 1912, in a private audience with Pope Pius X (who has since been canonized), Bishop Thomas J. Shahan was granted permission to build the shrine. The Pope also gave Bishop Shahan somewhere between $300 and $400 in Italian currency as his personal contribution for the building. Many Americans of a variety of faiths have also contributed over the years. The shrine has no steel skeleton. Fashioned by craftsmen fitting together mortar, stone, brick and tile, the building relies on the laws of physics to "defy" gravity. That is, forces pushing upward and inward balance forces pushing downward and outward. Inside, the building is decorated with mosaics, telling the stories and presenting the symbols of the church through history, sometimes covering an area from ceiling to floor with tapestry of color.

Argos do unexpected; Esks follow the script

Willie Wood figures sometime within the next month his Toronto Argonauts should start showing their spots.

The Argos are riding a crest at the moment after their 20-17 win Wednesday night over Winnipeg Blue Bombers left them sitting atop the Eastern Football Conference standings with a 2-0 record.

Toronto hasn't won a championship since 1952 and hasn't even posed a threat since 1971 when it went to the Canadian Football League final before flunking away its last opportunity.

"Sometime down the line, maybe in next month or so, maybe some character will start showing on this team," Wood said after his club almost blew the game in front of 20,880 Winnipeg fans. The Argos looked much more impressive last week when they handled Montreal Alouettes 18-11 in their season opener.

"There's no way I would have figured our team would have been 2-0 at this point because, honestly, I don't think we are that good," Wood said. "I know we have some fine talent, but I think we are a little inexperienced."

In the only other scheduled game Wednesday night, the Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos had little trouble subduing Saskatchewan Roughriders 21-6 in Regina. Edmonton, at 2-0, leads the Western Conference while Saskatchewan joins Winnipeg at the bottom with identical 0-2 records.

Wide receiver Bob Gaddis caught a 22-yard pass from quarterback Mark Jackson early in the fourth quarter to put the Argos in front for the first time in their game, but it took a 40-yard field goal by Zenon Andrushyshyn at the 7:37 mark to secure the victory.

Fullback Bill Harrison bulled his way for the first Toronto touchdown - his first in the CFL - on the final play of the first half to lift Toronto to a 7-7 tie. Andrushyshyn converted both TDs and contributed the first of his two field goals - from 38 yards - in the third quarter.

Rick House scored the only Winnipeg TD, a 12-yard pass from Dieter Brock. Trevor Kennerd kicked two field goals and three singles while Robert Woods took a pass from Brock to complete a two-point conversion after House's score.

Jim Germany scored two touchdowns to spearhead Edmonton's running game that accounted for 148 yards in the game to just 31 for the Riders. Germany logged 73 yards himself from 16 carries while quarterback Warren Moon scrambled for 42 more off four carries.

Moon, who split the Eskimos quarterbacking with veteran Tom Wilkinson, added another 93 yards passing, connecting on nine of 17 attempts. Wilkinson, who played the first half, converted 10 of 18 throws for 126 yards.

Dave Cutler completed the Eskimo's scoring, converting both Germany's TDs and adding field goals of 26 and 19 yards and a 48-yard single. Bob Nacott kicked field goals of 23 and 48 yards for the Saskatchewan points.

Danny Saunders, who got the call when Roughriders' passing, connecting on nine of 17 attempts, Wilkinson, who played the first half, converted 10 of 18 throws for 126 yards.

Walk runs win string over Phils

Several times during a game, Bob Walk felt like a rookie pitcher should - awkward. Unfortunately for Houston Astros, Walk doesn't run scared.

Walk ran his victory streak to six without a loss Wednesday night, pitching a three-hitter that propelled Philadelphia Phillies to a 4-2 National League victory over the Astros.

He yielded only a pair of in-field singles to Jose Cruz and a two-run home to Art Howe in the fourth inning.

"The first two batters in that inning, everything was really smooth, but then all of a sudden I felt awkward," said Walk, 23. "That happened to me a couple of times tonight, but now I'm able to ignore those things."

Walk said Howe's homer, which was preceded by a walk to Cesar Cedeno, would have broken his concentration earlier in the season. "But I've learned to just get the ball and go after the next batter."

In other NL games, Montreal Expos downed Cincinnati Reds 6-4; Pittsburgh Pirates defeated San Francisco Giants 3-1; Chicago Cubs whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1; Atlanta Braves beat New York Mets 5-2 and St. Louis Cardinals blanked San Diego Padres 3-0.

The Phillies got to Houston right-hander Ken Forsch, 8-9, for two runs in the first. Pete Rose doubled and scored on a single by Bake McBride. McBride went to third on a single by Keith Moreland and scored on Garry Maddox's ground ball.

Philadelphia scored once more in the fourth and again in the sixth, both times with the help of Houston errors. Expos 6 Reds 4

Montreal clung to a one-half game lead over Pittsburgh in the NL East as Ellis Valentine drive in two runs and scored two more to pace the Expos.

Steve Rogers, 11-6, survived solo homers by Ray Knight, Joe Nolan and Sam Mejias in the seventh to post the victory.

Larry Parrish homered for the Expos, and Gary Carter lashed a two-run single in the sixth to give Montreal a 5-0 lead.

Pirates 3 Giants 1 John Milner cracked a two-run single in the first inning and scored Pittsburgh's third run in the sixth on Bill Madlock's sacrifice fly, giving the Pirates their seventh victory in nine games. Bertie Blyleven and Grant Jackson combined to quiet the Giants on eight hits.

Cubs 4 Dodgers 1

Rick Reuschel tossed a seven-hitter, striking out eight for his third complete game of the season, as the Cubs stifled Los Angeles. The Cubs broke a 1-1 tie with two runs in the sixth, Los Angeles shortstop Bill Russell committed a fielding and throwing error on the same play to allow one run to score.

Braves 5 Mets 2

Bob Horner slugged two solo homers, giving him 14 for the season and nine in 16 games, and Gary Matthews added a two-run shot to pace Atlanta past the Mets. Larry McWilliams scattered eight hits for the victory, and Mets right-hander Craig Swan, the victim of all three Atlanta homers, was the loser.

Cardinals 3 Padres 0

Peter Vuckovich tossed a six-hit shutout and provided himself with all the offense he needed by scoring a run and bunting one home. Vuckovich struck out five and walked two in earning his second shutout of the season.

Blue Jays 5 Mariners 0

Dave Stieb pitched a three-hitter and John Mayberry belted a pair of home runs, leading Toronto Blue Jays past Seattle. Roy Howell and Ernie Whitt also hit homers to back Stieb, 9-6, who faced only 28 batters.

Yankees 11 Twins 1

Bob Watson highlighted New York's seven-run fourth inning with a bases-loaded triple as the Yankees routed Minnesota. Tom Underwood, 8-6, limited the Twins to three hits in seven innings with relief help from Tim Lollar.

Orioles 10 Brewers 4

Rick Dempsey drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a two-run double and Steve Stone, 14-3, posted his 12th straight victory as Baltimore defeated Milwaukee.

Rangers 11 White Sox 3

Rusty Staub went four-for-four, driving in three runs and Dave Roberts hit a three-run homer as Texas crushed Chicago with successive five-run innings. Jon Matlack, 6-5, got the victory.

Indians 6 Angels 2

Jorge Orta drive in two runs with a double and a single, and Miguel Dilone had three hits to back the six-hit pitching of Wayne Garland, 4-2, as Cleveland defeated California.

Tigers 7 A's 2

Rookie Roger Weaver, 2-0, combined with starter Mill Wilcox on a three-hitter and Lance Parrish capped a five-run sixth inning with a three-run pinch-homer as Detroit beat Oakland.

Caps win shootout over LA

New England Tea Men have stretched their North American Soccer League winning streak to eight games while Seattle Sounders' eight-game string of success is finished.

Tony Brown scored his sixth goal of the season at 19:18 - a 30-metre shot that found the upper right-hand corner of the net - to give the Tea Men a 1-0 triumph over Rochester Lancers Wednesday night.

Meanwhile, Alan Green scored in the 26th minute of the second half to provide Washington Diplomats with a 3-2 victory over the Sounders after some first-half heroics by Johan Cruyff.

Cruyff scored a brilliant goal just six minutes into the contest after dribbling through most of the Seattle team. Three minutes later, he stole the ball and set up Tony Crescitelli for an easy goal.

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Fury upset the New York Cosmos 2-1, Minnesota Kicks blanked Houston Hurricanes 1-0, Portland Timbers defeated Dallas Tornado 3-2, Chicago Sting stung Edmonton Drillers 2-1, San Diego Sockers socked Atlanta Chiefs 4-0, Tampa Bay Rowdies shut out San Jose Earthquakes 3-0 and Vancouver Whitecaps edged Los Angeles Aztecs 2-1.

Fury 2 Cosmos 1 Fran O'Brien scored two first-half goals just under six minutes apart as Philadelphia beat New York for the first time ever.

Sting 2 Drillers 1

Karl-Heinz Granitz scored his 14th goal of the season at 87:42 to give Chicago the victory. Ingo Petr of the Sting opened the scoring at 13:19 with a booming shot from about 50 metres out.

Whitecaps 2 Aztecs 1

Shootout goals by Trevor Whymark, Gerry Gray and newcomer Alan Taylor gave Vancouver the victory in a lack-luster game.

Canada only unbeaten team

TACOMA, Wash. (CP) — Terry Chayka hit his second single of the game in the ninth inning Wednesday to give Canada a dramatic 1-0 win over New Zealand before 7,100 fans at the World Men's Fastpitch Softball championships.

Chayka, 24, of Vineland, Ont., came to bat with two out and two men on base against famed New Zealand pitcher Kevin Herlihy. Chayka flied to left field and outfielder Bob Jones fell during the play, allowing Greg Dick of Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont. to score the winning run in the second extra inning.

Rob Guenter, of Saskatoon, out-duelled Herlihy with a two-hit shutout. Guenter struck out 10 batters and walked none for his second tournament win. His first win was a 3-1, one-hit decision over Argentina.

Herlihy was tagged for two singles by Chayka, while Brian Ostrosker, of Stoney Creek, Ont., had a double and single. Herlihy gave up six hits, struck out nine and walked Dick intentionally twice.

Canada now is the lone unbeaten team in Group B with a 5-0 record, while New Zealand dropped to 4-1. Canada plays Panama today in the final game of the round-robin portion of the tournament with the championship round beginning Friday.

Mexico is tied with New Zealand at 4-1, while Taiwan and Panama are 2-3. Argentina has one win and five losses while Papua-New Guinea is winless in five starts. Bahamas and U.S. are unbeaten after five games in Group A and will meet tonight.

Japan is in third place with a 3-2 record while Dominican Republic is 2-3. The Virgin Islands has one win and five losses and South Africa has lost all five games.

On Wednesday, Mexico defeated Papua-New Guinea 12-1, United States beat South Africa 5-0, Japan downed Virgin Island 4-0, Panama beat Argentina 4-0 and Bahamas defeated Dominican Republic 1-0.

Marsh World

WHIRLIGIG BEETLE (Family: Gyrinidae) — These small beetles, about 8 mm long, are often seen darting about in calm water. Large numbers are attracted to such feeding spots and their circular movement causes dozens of concentric ripples. They never seem to collide or even slow down as they chase and capture small insects on or just below the surface. A remarkable feature of whirligig beetles is the fact they have four eyes (A); two above and two beneath the water. Shown here is a side and head-on view of the eyes' positions. The paddle-like, middle and hind legs are used for swimming; the longer forelegs are used for catching prey.

Now you're talkin' taste.

Canadians shut out

Fred Kuhaulua pitched a twohitter for his third shutout of the season to lead Hawaii Islanders to a 5-0 win over Vancouver Canadians in a Pacific Coast League ball game Wednesday night in Honolulu.

Elsewhere, Tacoma split a doubleheader with Portland, winning the first game 6-1 and losing the second 11-1, and Spokane split a pair at Ogden, winning the opener 3-1 and losing the nightcap 6-2.

Albuquerque beat Salt Lake 10-6 in 10 innings and Tucson edged Phoenix 4-3.

In Honolulu, Kuhaulua allowed an infield single in the second and a single in the seventh as he improved his record to 6-7. He struck out one and walked five.

The loss went to Vancouver starter Fred Holsworth, now 4-5, who gave up four runs on six hits in six innings.

In Portland, Luis Salazar

bashed a three-run homer in the third inning to lead the Beavers to the 11-1 victory over Tacoma in the second game. Backed by three Beaver home runs and five doubles, lefthander Dan Warthen easily picked up his first win in two decisions.

In the opener, Tom Brennan scattered seven hits and improved his record to 7-2 as Tacoma whipped Portland 6-1.
